Who's Who in Social Security

An Introduction

In 1935, the Social Security Act was a major step forward to provide an economic foundation for America's families, from retirees to survivors, and from children to the disabled. Almost nine decades later, Social Security is crucial to the well-being of more than 66 million beneficiaries and will doubtless continue to be crucial for virtually every American in the future.

Since its launch, Social Security has evolved to meet the changing needs of the country and will undoubtedly continue to adjust along with the America's population demographics. It's clear that Social Security's future will continue to emerge at the forefront of political platforms as they unfold and as Congress deals with the financial challenges of this critical senior support program.

The Old-Age and Survivors Insurance (OASI) Trust Fund, which pays retirement and survivors benefits, and the Disability Insurance (DI) Trust Fund, which pays disability benefits, provide an accounting of Social Security's financial support. Social Security's expenditures, together totaling nearly $1.4 trillion in 2023, are a formidable portion of our country's economic picture.

Beyond the sheer size of the OASI and DI expenditure, however, is the even more staggering fact that the Trust Funds established to handle income and disbursements from Social Security are systematically moving toward exhaustion. After amassing a reserve balance of nearly $3 trillion, financial demographics have created a situation where Social Security's outflow exceeds its inflow.

As announced by the Social Security Board of Trustees in May of 2024, the "combined OASI and DI Trust Fund asset reserves become depleted and unable to pay scheduled benefits in full on a timely basis in 2035. At the time of depletion of these combined reserves, continuing income to the combined trust funds would be sufficient to pay 83 percent of scheduled benefits.

The Time for Action is Rapidly Dissolving!

The long-term solvency of Social Security has been a steadily growing issue for some time and has reached the point where a harsh reality is in sight. The Association of Mature American Citizens (AMAC) has long been in the forefront of a fight to bring forth solutions to address this impending crisis, and has taken the initiative to advance a legislative framework to address the long-term problem. As an action-oriented and member-driven association, AMAC puts the well-being of its constituency at the top of its priority list and has been resolute in its mission to get the attention of lawmakers to develop the least disruptive solution to the problem.

Make no mistake about it...time is running out. Now is the moment to take the steps that will ensure the stability of Social Security for future generations of Americans without subjecting workers to severe consequences. "Sooner rather than later" is the catchphrase that must govern...the funding shortfalls cannot be resolved without legislative intervention. This is not a self-correcting situation.

Tackling the Problem

It's a big undertaking...we know that. And there are legions of people involved in meeting the challenge. From the Congressional Representatives we've elected to resolve issues like this to the Social Security Administration officials who manage the myriad complexities of the program, there are countless names and faces engaged in the process to save the program, just as there are diverse professionals laboring to create pathways to resolution. Like we said, it's a big undertaking!

For this reason, we've created this "Who's Who in Social Security" handbook for use as a guide in identifying the key players in the overall quest for a solution to Social Security's dilemma. The material contained in this guide will serve to help point you to the people who are integral to the solution and will serve to bring you up-to-speed on the many proposed resolutions currently in play.

This document is a product of the AMAC Foundation, AMAC's affiliated public benefit corporation. Its intent is to lend assistance in understanding and resolving the Social Security solvency crisis. AMAC's Founder and President, Dan Weber, initiated the creation of the first edition of the handbook in 2015, enlisting the help and support of key AMAC and AMAC Foundation contributors to bring it to fruition. As the Social Security solvency endpoint grows closer and closer, AMAC Foundation has updated the information in this compilation to reflect current assignments.

Social Security Administration

The Social Security Administration (SSA) is an independent agency of the U.S. federal government, with a mission to “Deliver Social Security services that meet the changing needs of the public.” With a staff of about 57,000 (and facing the potential of a 7,000-person reduction) employees spread across more than 1,300 field offices and embassy locations around the world and an online presence through SSA.gov, the Agency is for many people the face of the federal government.

The Social Security Administration (SSA) came into being on July 16, 1946. Prior to this time, the Social Security program was administered by a three-person Social Security Board. The Board was abolished in a government reorganization and replaced by the SSA, with a single Commissioner as its head. For a complete list of the 30 Social Security Commissioners from 1946 through 2019, please refer to Appendix 1.

SSA’s headquarters is in Woodlawn, Maryland. Much of the Administration’s detail claim work is performed at six large Program Service Centers located around the country. The six service centers are:

- Northeastern Program Service Center, Jamaica, Queens, New York (as of late 1980s; previously in Rego Park, Queens and College Point, Queens)
- Mid-Atlantic Program Service Center, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania
- Southeastern Program Service Center, Birmingham, Alabama
- Great Lakes Program Service Center, Chicago, Illinois
- Mid-America Program Service Center, Kansas City, Missouri
- Western Program Service Center, Richmond, California (as of mid-1970s; previously in San Francisco)

In addition, there are topical centers handling specific matters:

- Office of Earnings and International Operations, Baltimore, Maryland
- Office of Disability Operations, Baltimore, Maryland

The current oversight and management of SSA is accomplished through a hierarchical structure as shown in the charts that follow in this handbook.

- Secretary of the Treasury (the Managing Trustee),
- Secretary of Labor,
- Secretary of Health and Human Services, and
- Commissioner of Social Security

Two members are appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. These two members serve 4-year terms. Since 2015, there have been no public trustees appointed.

The United States Senate

Section 3 of the United States Constitution dictates “The Senate of the United States shall be composed of two Senators from each State, chosen by the Legislature thereof, for six Years; and each Senator shall have one Vote.¹” This approach gives equal representation to states regardless of population, and helps to preserve their individual sovereignty. Accordingly, the Senate consists of 100 members, elected by popular vote for six-year, staggered terms.

The Constitution sets three qualifications for service in the U.S. Senate: age (at least thirty years of age); U.S. citizenship (at least nine years); and residency in the state a senator represents at time of election. The details of these qualifications were hammered out by the Constitution's framers during the Constitutional Convention in 1787.

Since 1789, nearly 2,000 individuals have been a senator; of these, 17 have become U.S. presidents, 14 have served as Supreme Court Justices, five have been awarded the Nobel Peace Prize, and 37 have been awarded the Presidential Medal of Freedom.²

The United States House of Representatives

As per the Constitution, the U.S. House of Representatives makes and passes federal laws. The House is one of Congress's two chambers (the other is the U.S. Senate), and part of the federal government's legislative branch. Section 2 of the United States Constitution dictates that membership in the House of Representatives is apportioned to the population of each state, with each state having at least one seat. The decennial congressional district reapportionment process that follows each official census ensures that this representation stays in balance within its membership ceiling of 435 Representatives. These representatives are elected biannually for two-year terms, with elections held in even-numbered years.

19 House of Representatives members have also served as president, and 17 House Members have served on the U.S. Supreme Court.³

With respect to legislative activity involving Social Security, the House—and explicitly its Committee on Ways and Means (“Ways and Means Committee”) -- has a specific responsibility as defined in the United States Constitution. Article I, Section 7 of the Constitution states that: “All bills for raising Revenue shall originate in the House of Representatives; but the Senate may propose or concur with Amendments as on other Bills.”⁴ Revenue-related aspects of the Social Security system ... have come within Ways and Means’ purview in the 20th century.⁵

Listed in the following pages are those House of Representatives members who have a direct relationship with legislative activities concerning Social Security.

Social Security Advisory Board

Current Members

The Social Security Advisory Board (SSAB) is a bipartisan, independent federal government agency established in 1994 to advise the President, the Congress, and the Commissioner of Social Security on matters of policy and administration of the Old-Age, Survivors, and Disability Insurance and the Supplemental Security Income programs. The Board has seven members, appointed by the President, Senate and House of Representatives. All SSAB members are appointed for six-year terms (staggered), and all are subject to Senate confirmation. The SSAB meets at least six times each year.

Functions of the Board

- Analyzing the Nation's retirement and disability systems and making recommendations with respect to how the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program and the supplemental security income program, supported by other public and private systems, can most effectively assure economic security.
- Studying and making recommendations relating to the coordination of programs that provide health security with social security programs.
- Making recommendations to the President and to the Congress with respect to policies that will ensure the solvency of the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program, both in the short-term and the long-term.
- Making recommendations with respect to the quality of service that the Administration provides to the public.
- Making recommendations with respect to policies and regulations regarding the old-age, survivors, and disability insurance program and the supplemental security income program.
- Increasing public understanding of the social security system.
- Making recommendations with respect to a long-range research and program evaluation plan for the Administration.
- Reviewing and assessing any major studies of social security as may come to the attention of the Board.
- Making recommendations with respect to such other matters as the Board determines to be appropriate.

The Legislative Process

The primary duty of Congress is to administer the legislative process and, through this process, enact the laws that govern the country. To accomplish this, Congress annually considers thousands of individual bills via this process which, while somewhat complex, can be traced chronologically through these stages:

Step 1 – The Introduction

All bills must be sponsored and introduced by a member of Congress, although they can originate from a variety of sources.

Step 2 – Committee Referral

Once introduced, the bill is referred to the appropriate committee (in some cases, multiple committees) for study and assessment.

Step 3 – Subcommittee Review

Once assigned to a focused subcommittee, the bill is researched extensively and, where appropriate, subjected to public hearings.

Step 4 – Mark-up

Using the results of research and hearings, the bill is “marked-up” with changes and amendments and sent back to the referring committee.

Step 5 – Committee Action

Depending on the information provided by subcommittee, the referring committee may elect to take no action (letting the bill die) or vote on whether the bill will be ordered for reporting to the House or Senate. A committee report outlining the bill’s provisions and the committee’s position on it usually accompanies the bill.

Step 6 – Chamber Debate

Having survived committee review, the bill is next scheduled for debate on the chamber floor. At this stage, the bill can be either passed or defeated. If passed, the bill is now considered an “act.”

The Legislative Process (Cont'd)

Step 7 – Chamber Exchange

If the bill is passed by the House, it is then referred to the Senate for analysis and debate. If passed in step 6 by the Senate, it is similarly referred to the House. If the chamber receiving the bill is already considering a similar bill, the additional analysis and debate is generally waived. In any event, the receiving chamber may at this point approve, reject, ignore, or modify the bill.

Step 8 – Bicameral Determination

If, after both chambers have debated the bill, there are substantial differences between the House and Senate versions, a bicameral conference committee is assigned responsibility for achieving reconciliation. The results are provided to both the House and the Senate for approval (both must approve an identical version of the bill). If there is no agreement at this point, the bill dies.

Step 9 – Presidential Review

The jointly approved bill is now sent to the president, becoming law if it is signed. The president may allow the bill to sit unsigned for a 10-day period, which allows it to become law if Congress is in session during the period. If Congress adjourns during the 10-day unsigned period, the bill also dies (this is referred to as a “pocket veto”). The president may also veto the bill at this point and return it to Congress for further analysis and re-submission.

Step 10 – Veto Override

If the president vetoes the bill, either directly or via a pocket veto, the rejection can be overridden by Congress by re-voting. To become law after a veto, a bill must receive affirmative votes from a two-thirds majority in both chambers.

“Think Tanks” Active in the Social Security Arena

Subjects with the magnitude and breadth of Social Security require extensive, continual, and focused research on an extremely wide range of topics to ensure that all viewpoints and perspectives are given due consideration in the formulation of policy. Accordingly, a number of research institutes have evolved over the years in which highly informed professionals delve into background issues on major subjects and craft thoroughly examined positions that policy makers often consider in laying out courses of action.

In the area of Social Security, there are several major, relevant organizations that perform this service for the general public. Their material is made available to interested parties as support for the decision-making process, as advocacy support for internal and external policy-making participants, and as general reference material for other researchers and members of the public seeking to fully understand Social Security at a greater depth.

This section identifies several notable research organizations that have some level of focus on Social Security, provides contact information for these organizations, and summarizes the organizations’ scope or mission via excerpts from their respective websites.

Recent Proposals That Would Affect Trust Fund Solvency

The Trust Funds associated with Social Security (the Old-Age and Survivors Insurance [OASI] Trust Fund and the Disability Income [DI] Trust Fund) are monitored and reported on annually by the Social Security Board of Trustees. An excerpt from the most recent public report from the Board points to concerns regarding the long-term financial viability of these funds: “Under the intermediate assumptions, the projected hypothetical combined OASI and DI Trust Fund asset reserves become depleted and unable to pay scheduled benefits in full on a timely basis in 2035. At the time of depletion of these combined reserves, continuing income to the combined trust funds would be sufficient to pay 83 percent of scheduled benefits.”

Various policymakers and external organizations have long recognized this impending funding problem, and a variety of proposals have been crafted to address the long-term problem. The Social Security Administration (SSA) Office of the Chief Actuary tracks these proposals and provides memoranda on the actuarial impact of these proposals, presenting the material to the public via their website (ssa.gov/OACT/solvency/provisions). Projections and estimates are based on the intermediate assumptions made in the most recent Trustees Report available at the time the proposal was made.

The remainder of this section will summarize a collection of these proposals, beginning with the Social Security Guarantee legislative framework proposed by AMAC. For more information about AMAC’s Social Security Guarantee, visit AMAC.us.

For official proposals submitted to Congress, the material will identify the official name of the proposal and its sponsor(s).

The AMAC Social Security Guarantee

AMAC's founder, Dan Weber, has been in the forefront of the fight to address the problems facing America's Social Security program. In AMAC's view, Social Security has two long-term weaknesses:

- (1) The level of financial support projected for future beneficiaries will be inadequate, given the evaporation of private pensions and the steadily rising cost of living. The AMAC proposal addresses this with a change to COLA adjustments that guarantees yearly increases weighted to support low incomes, and the implementation of an Early Retirement Account (ERA) designed to provide a way for workers to accumulate a financial base sufficient enough to enable retirement before becoming a Social Security beneficiary.
- (2) The program in its current configuration has been in deficit spending since 2021, causing a steady depletion of the Social Security Trust Fund reserves. If left unchecked, projections are that the Trust Fund balance will be exhausted by 2034, with the result being a substantial across-the-board reduction of payments to beneficiaries.

As an action-oriented association, AMAC is resolved to do its part to call for action on this very serious problem, and has developed a simple, actuarially sound solution to the long-term Social Security solvency problem. We've advanced this proposal on Capitol Hill, with AMAC representatives resolute in their mission to get the attention of lawmakers. Many meetings and discussions with congressional offices and their legislative staff over the past several years have explored the AMAC approach, with the result that the ideas contained in the proposal have begun to gain traction with legislators.

AMAC's proposal has three Prime Directives:

- 1) Increase benefits for those with lower earnings
- 2) Achieve solvency and ensure benefits continue
- 3) Provide a means for all earners to have more income available at retirement

The AMAC Social Security Guarantee

The promise to guarantee Social Security for all Americans must be kept. AMAC has examined the many proposed solutions presented in the intermediate assumptions portion of recent Trustees Reports and selected the alternatives we feel are best suited to save Social Security. We have combined these selected assumptions with several other recommendations to achieve what we believe is the best path to long-term Trust Fund solvency without raising payroll taxes.

GUARANTEE AN ANNUAL INCREASE IN BENEFITS FOR ALL, WITH EMPHASIS ON THOSE WITH LOWER EARNINGS TO ENSURE THE PROGRAM STAYS TRUE TO ITS MISSION: KEEPING SENIORS OUT OF POVERTY.

Ensure the annual cost-of-living adjustment (COLA) has a minimum increase of 1% to offset increasing costs for seniors, even in years where CPI is at or below zero.

Modify the current COLA methodology to increase benefits by the same dollar amount for all eligible beneficiaries, where the annual dollar increase is equal to the average benefit amount adjusted by inflation.

If Social Security benefits cannot be fully exempted from income taxation, increase the income thresholds for taxation of Social Security benefits to exempt middle-class seniors and index the levels for inflation.

GUARANTEE ACHIEVING SOLVENCY AND ENSURE BENEFITS CONTINUE WITHOUT AUTOMATIC CUTS.

Among other options, make relatively minor adjustments to benefit calculations for high earners that would result in program savings in the long-term. For example:

- Modify the primary insurance amount calculation so that more of the average indexed monthly earnings for retirees are moved to the lower percentage tiers (progressive price indexing).
- Increase the number of years of indexed earnings in the formula used to calculate the primary insurance amount (i.e., the full retirement base benefit).
- For those beneficiaries below the annual Social Security maximum, increase the benefit available to surviving spouses.

GUARANTEE ALL EARNERS THE OPPORTUNITY TO CREATE MORE INCOME AVAILABLE AT RETIREMENT THROUGH WORK AND IMPROVED RETIREMENT SAVINGS PROGRAMS.

Eliminate the Social Security Earnings test for early retirees who want to continue to work to be able to do so without having current benefits reduced between early and full retirement age.

Improve portability, transparency, and availability of 401k, IRA, and other retirement savings instruments to increase retirement income for current and future workers.

The goal of AMAC's Social Security Guarantee (SSG) is to preserve the program for current beneficiaries and to modernize it for successive generations. AMAC's plan is balanced and singles out no group with excessive changes. We are also confident that our blueprint, presented here as a whole, will extend the solvency of the program and prevent across the board cuts.

Our plan suggests a variety of areas for change to accomplish solvency for the long term:

- We change COLA from a straight percentage for all to a same dollar amount for all using the Chained CPI index on the average benefit, and include a 1% floor for the annual adjustment
- We propose either eliminating or at least indexing the amount where income tax is due on benefits
- We propose gradually adjusting the normal retirement age (but not early retirement age) by three years, from age 67 to age 70 consistent with increasing longevity, and index the normal retirement age to life expectancy
- We suggest changing the formula for the highest earnings such that more income is captured at the secondary bend points, consistent with the progressivity of the program
- We propose increasing the work history calculation by three years from 35 to 38
- We propose elimination of the earnings test on those who work before full retirement age
- We suggest enhancing surviving spousal benefits
- We propose improved supplemental retirement savings opportunities

Note, it must be recognized that these recommendations are interlocking to achieve full elimination of the projected funding shortfall. Caution must be taken to not “pluck” only one or two items out for passage. For example, if Congress were to only lessen income tax on benefits and/or only enhance survivor benefits, solvency would be exacerbated, as these two items would have a “cost” rather than a “savings” to the Social Security Trust Fund.

Finally, the plan here is by no means the only way to fix the solvency problem. Although we have called for no broad tax increase, some kind of increase in either the FICA/DSECA tax rate (currently 6.2%) or amount of wages captured by this tax is likely inevitable, given the urgency of the problem and compromise required in the political climate.

SSG Recommendation Summary

Using the approximations derived from the Social Security Office of the Chief Actuary's scoring of comparable proposals, we estimate that the slate of recommendations comprising the SSG would achieve a net resolution of 101% of the long-range actuarial balance shortfall. Absent formal actuary scoring, we view these estimates as representative of a potential long-term solution subject to further discussion.

Additional Proposals to Modify Social Security

Policymakers have developed proposals and options that have financial effects on the OASDI Trust Funds. Many of these proposals and options have the intent of addressing the long-range solvency problem

In the 118th Congress, 15 such proposals were submitted. Social Security's Office of the Chief Actuary (OCA) has prepared letters or memoranda for many of these proposals and options. Each letter or memorandum provides an actuarial analysis showing the estimated effect on the financial status of the Social Security program.

Here is a summary of the proposals evaluated by the OCA during the 118th Congress. Additional details on the evaluation results can be obtained via the OCA's website (<https://www.ssa.gov/oact/solvency>):

Interesting Facts about Social Security

For most of our working lives, the concept of Social Security has been a bit abstract. Yes, we notice it every time we look at a paystub or certainly when we go through the annual income tax filing process and, yes, we dream about the day when we finally reach the golden age of retirement and we begin to see a return on what we've paid in through the years. But for the most part it's a largely intangible concept during our early and mid-life working years.

As we approach that retirement phase, or when other factors cause us to think about Social Security and its place in American history, many of us tend to wonder about the lesser-known background items related to this enormous system and its origins. Here are a few little-known facts about Social Security that tend to keep inquiring minds awake at night:

- Social Security will mark its 90th anniversary in August of 2025. The program was signed into law on August 14, 1935 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt.
- Monthly benefits were first paid in January 1940. The first monthly Social Security benefit check was paid to Ida May Fuller, a legal secretary, in the amount of $22.54.
- Since its inception, over 450 million different Social Security numbers have been issued (about 5.5 million new ones each year).
- Social Security numbers are not reused upon death.
- The 3-2-4 structure of your Social Security number has a purpose: the first three digits represent where you're from (prior to 1972, they identified the state where you originally applied, and after that they identified the zip code of your mailed application). The early program administrators needed some way to organize the filing cabinets into sub-groups, to make them more manageable, and this is the scheme they came up with.
- No Social Security numbers have ever been issued with 000, 666, or 900-999 as the first three digits, or zeros in the middle two or last four positions.
- There are three different types of Social Security cards issued: the card issued to U.S. citizens and permanent residents; a "not valid for employment" version; and a "valid for work only with DHS authorization" version.
- The initial Social Security withholding rate was set at 2% (combined employee/employer) up to a maximum of $3,000.

There are also some anecdotal items that have transpired during Social Security's almost 90-year history, like the amusing tale of Hilda Schrader Whitcher. It seems her employer, E.H. Ferree Company of Lockport, NY elected to imitate reality by using her Social Security number on an insert in the wallets they were selling. Despite steps that were taken to ensure understanding that the insert was for display purposes only, more than 40,000 people claimed the number as their own. The result was chaotic for Mrs. Whitcher, who was subsequently issued a replacement number.

Interesting Facts about Social Security (cont'd)

Then there's the recurring problem of accuracy in Social Security's Death Master File. The website NPR.org observes that this file lists over "6.5 million 'people' with Social Security numbers over the age of 112," despite findings by the Gerontology Research Group that there have been only 35 people known to have reached the age of 112 in the world.⁷ And, "A recent government audit revealed that the Social Security Administration had incorrectly listed 23,000 people as dead in a two-year period. These people have sometimes faced difficulties in convincing government agencies that they are actually alive..."⁸ It's important to understand that Social Security's Death Master File has multiple purposes, including research on mortality rates, fraud prevention, and genealogy.

So, it's logical that with a program of this size there is an almost unlimited opportunity for interested parties to engage in lively conversation about the many nuances and details surrounding Social Security. Here are a few additional points that will help you be prepared to join in any impromptu debates you may encounter along the way:

- Over 68 million people received Social Security benefits in February 2025.⁹
- The total paid out by Social Security in November 2019 was over $126 billion.
- The average monthly payout was $1,839 per beneficiary.
- Automatic Cost of Living Adjustments (COLAs) were first initiated in 1972, and currently use CPI-W (Consumer Price Index for Urban Clerical and Wage Earners) as its factor.
- People with lower incomes receive higher ratios of annual benefits to career earnings.
- For workers who earned average wages and retired at the age of 65 in 1980, it took 2.8 years of receiving old-age benefits to recover the value of their payroll taxes (including interest). For workers who retired in 2003, it will take 17.4 years. For workers who will retire in 2020, it will take 21.6 years. This assumes Social Security will have enough money to pay scheduled benefits for this entire period, which it is not projected to have.¹⁰
- The amount of your average earnings that Social Security retirement benefits replace depends on your earnings and when you choose to start benefits. If you start benefits in 2025 at your "full retirement age" (see our "Full retirement age"

⁷ <https://www.npr.org/sections/thetwo-way/2015/03/10/392112708/6-5-million-social-security-numbers-linked-to-those-112-or-older> section), this percentage ranges from as much as 79% for very low earners, to about 43% for medium earners, to about 28% for maximum earners.¹¹

- All taxes that have been paid into the Social Security system since its inception have already been (1) spent to pay for benefits, (2) spent to fund the operation of the program, or (3) loaned to the federal government.¹²

Through history, there have been a number of unique and celebrated people surfacing in the annals of Social Security. Among them are:

Ackerman, Ernest	• First recipient of a lump-sum Social Security benefit check. In January 1937, he received a check in the amount of 17 cents...a return on his total investment of 5 cents.
Altmeyer, Arthur J.	• Part of the committee to draft the original legislative proposal in 1934 • Chairman of the Social Security Board 1937 • One of the few responsible for how Social Security exists today
Burns, Eveline M.	• Economist and educator at Columbia University • Member of the Committee on Economic Security in 1934 working on employment security issues • Authored three books on Social Security • Consultant to the Social Security Board in 1936
Epstein, Abraham	• Early advocate of Old Age Security • His "European Plan" for social security was adopted by New York in 1935 • Advocated for Social Welfare and Unions
Fuller, Ida May	• First person to receive monthly benefit pay outs • First check on January 31, 1940 for the amount of $22.54
Fuller, Mary Falvey	• One of the first two Public Trustees appointed as non-government overseers of Social Security and Medicare Trust Funds
Perkins, Frances	• Appointed as Franklin Roosevelt's Secretary of Labor in 1933 • First woman to hold a cabinet position in the United States • Played key role in writing New Deal legislation, including minimum wage laws • Involved in every aspect of creating the Social Security of 1935
Roosevelt, Franklin D.	• Signed the Social Security Act on August 14, 1935 • In October 1929, in response to the Great Depression, started a relief system that later became the model for the New Deal's Federal Emergency Relief Administration (FERA)
Winant, John G.	• Appointed as the first head of the Social Security Board in 1935 by Franklin Roosevelt • Held the position until 1937

Our Foundation

The AMAC Foundation has now been in operation for more than a decade, and in that time has created a solid footprint in service to America's seniors. These services have taken the form of public seminars and workshops on topics vital to an aging constituency, the operation of a vigorous online presence designed to meet the needs of seniors, and the provision of direct services in the form of credible answers to questions about the mechanics of America's Social Security program.

This publication represents an extension of the AMAC Foundation's outreach efforts, and as noted in the Introduction, is intended as a guide in identifying the key players in the overall quest for a solution to Social Security's solvency dilemma. It's one of the many ways AMAC is playing an active role in addressing Social Security's long-term funding problems, with the hope of calling additional attention to the issue.

We need your help in this venture and as we continue to build the programs and projects that are so vital to America's seniors. Take this opportunity to co-invest in our mission—a mission that is making a difference on so many fronts and in so many lives.

The AMAC Foundation is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization. Your donation is tax deductible to the extent allowable under current law. Visit our website (AMACFoundation.org) for more information.

Thank you!
